

Cookie is charged but it is Ponifia who are convicted.

In a packed courthouse on Saturday 14 January, curious citizens expecting to watch Cookie be convicted of a number of offences relating to the recent glue drama were amazed to witness her found not guilty on all charges, bar one relating to trespassing on Ponifia property. Further gasps followed when she was sentenced to do a week of community service. The convict went on to spend that week subjecting the citizens of TT to a constant stream of complaining and moaning about her sentence leaving citizens to wonder who had really been punished.

However, following this surprisingly soft sentence for Cookie, the Right Honourable Judge Danaira shocked the court by slapping a huge 1.5 million Moolah fine on to the Ponifia who she accused of illegally constructing the glue factory and hence being somehow responsible for the resulting boiler explosion and glue spill.

In a break from previous court cases, these were quite calm, professional and measured proceedings. Although Jane arrived with a suspiciously looking large briefcase, there were no explosive antics this time. Both sets of lawyers were well prepared and the proceedings were brought to a conclusion a lot sooner than usual, coming in 20 minutes shy of 2 hours.

There was early amusement when we learned that Axelle had added the phrase "Not Guilty" as a bad word to Cookies shock collar so when she pleaded as such, she was treated to a powerful and painful looking electric shock.

The defence lawyers Ari and m4zi wasted no time in casting doubt on the video evidence and the so-called 'book of love'. After some strong verbal exchanges, the two teams summoned up the prosecution and defence cases.

But it seems it was already clear in the Judge's mind that the glue factory was an accident waiting to happen and that the lion's share of the blame lay with the Ponifia. The Godmother, Tricky Trouble was not in court to witness her charitable organisation being slapped with a huge fine, but responded later when approached by the Gazette:

"We counted on justice being done. We counted on being awarded money to cover the cost of the damage done by the Ponizei saboteur. Having private projects is a right of any company and there is exactly zero proof that the project would have failed if it had not been blown up. So instead of paying this ridiculous amount in a fake currency, I pose a simple question: "Where is the money we are owed to repair the damage?"

With the environmental cleanup complete and the court case and sentence dealt with, it seems the we can now stick a 'case closed' label on this whole sticky affair.

Now, where did I put my glue gun..?

So how much is 1.5M Moolahs?

Given the huge fine placed on the Ponifia I wanted to learn a bit more about the Moolah currency so I went to speak to TT's Dairy Farming expert, Trisky.

Tori: Hi Trisky! I have a question for you!

Tori: How many litres of milk would be needed to raise 1.5 million Moolahs?

Trisky: ~* Moo *~

Tori: wow that much?

Trisky: ~* Moo *~

Tori: I wondered how long it would take a cow to produce that much milk?

A trip to Sabhal Dearg

In case you didn't know, please be sure to check out this useful site which is a portal listing all the TT affiliated hubs around SL. We have visited others in previous editions so this time I have decided to visit Sabhal Dearg. This is a nice little hub close the the LL road. In terms of location, it is on Route 9A, north of the TT Glue Factory. It also features at GTF0 hub so you can pick up and drop off those important deliveries.
